The Scaled Packet.

Thad served twenty years on board an Erst Indianca, and for the last ten years had command of the Belle, one of the finest crafts that ever disated. I was an old sea cratis that ever thated. I was an old sea dog and had dwelt so long on saft water that I felt abuse a haired for the land. On the 20th of Ostober, 1831, I received orders to pur myself in readiness to sail for Cayonne. I was to transport seventy-the soldiers' and a convict. I had orders to treat this individual well, and the letter I re-adical from the Discourse industry modes. treat this monitoria well, and the letter I re-ceived from the Directory inclosed another, with a lunge red seal, which I was not to open until between 27 and 28 deg, west lon-gicule; that is just before we were to cross the line.

The letter was a long packet, so well closed on every side that it was impossible to catch the slightest glimpse of its contents—I am not naturally superstitous, but there was something in the letter that I did not altogether like, although I could give no reason why. However, I carried it into the caldin, and stuck it under the glass of a little old slattley clock, and who should come into my cabin but the convict and his wife!

This was the first time I had seen either of Into my cabin but the convict and his wife! This was the first time I had seen either of them, and I may say that a more prepossessing couple! I never met. The woman was starcely more than fifteen, and as handsome as a picture; while the husband was an intelligent, magnificently formed man, on whose features nature had never written! Geriffan;

Cvillian." His crime, to be plain, was the misfortune more of this afterwards.

The had, as I said, his wife hanging upon his arm. She was as merry as a bird; she had, all his a tirtle dove cooing and nestling under his great wing.

It howest upon them as my own children. Every morning tused to call them into my cabin. The young follow would sit, waiting at my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table—that is to say, at my cheef, which is my table means to say, at my cheef, one day we were all sitting in this way.

One day we were all sitting in this way.

One day we were all sitting in this way, when I said:

Do you know, my young ones, as it when I start:

"To you know, my young ones, as it stems to har, we make a very pretty family picture?" Mind I don't mean to ask questions, but maybe you have not much money to spare, and you are, both of you, as I think, non-hand-some to dig in the burning smool Cayenne, ilse many a poor wretch before you. It's a bad country—a bad country, take my word for it. I, who have roughed it through tempest, wind and sunstine, till I've got the skin of a rhimoceros, might got along there; but you.—I am afraid of you. So it you should chance to have a bit of foolish friendship for your poor old capain, I'll fell you what I'll do. I'll get than an old tob, after all; so I'll settle down there with you, if you like. You see I have not a diving soul in the world to care for, or that extre for me. I want relations, I want a home, I want a family, I should like to make my home with you, my pretty young one; I What say ye?"

They said nothing at all, but sat tooking.

They said nothing at all, but sat tooking, first at each other and then at me, as if they domitted whether they understood what I said.

At last the little bird threw her arms round my needs, and cried like a baby.
Bird, "said she, saidenly pausing, "you haven't leoked at the letter with the big red thing like a big measter, an ogte's tace gran-sing from the middle of the fire; it looked

"Pesh! pool !" said her husband, taking her arm under his; "I looks like a tetter of fivication to a wedding. Come, come, leave the letter slone as it troubles you so. Let's go to our room and prepare for bed." And on they went. They went upon deck and let' me with that least of a letter. I remember that I kept looking at it as I smeked my pipe; it seemed to fix its great red eye upon mine, lasefinding like the eye of a set pent. It was red, wide, raw, staring like the maw of a ferce wolf. I took thy reface cost and lone it over both elsek pipe.

We were now in the vicinity of the Cape de Verde Islands; the Belle was running before a fair wind at the rate of ten miles debete a fair wind at the rate of ten miles an hour. STOR CABINET.

The public is each day treated to new ramors in regard to contemplated changes in the cablact. It is quite probable that there is to be a thorough change of its members, naw that the work is begun, and that McCulloch, Welles, Seward and Randall, will give place to others, though he can scarcely tell why, as these all agree with the President in politics and so for as the public knows are congenial spirits every way. Mr. Seward in his haste to become subservient to the President has described his old friends, and trampled on the principles to which he has devoted the best part of his life. If Mr. Johnson now casts him off, he will be left to suffer alone, for he can never regain his lost supremmey to the republican party. In going over to Mr

Johnson, he has staked all and lost. We concede to Mr. Johnson the sight to select his own cabinet, and think it is a priilege of which no President should be deprived, and if his present advisors are not such as he desires, he should be allowed to select others. But it seems strange that having but a short time in which to continue in office, and having retained the present cablnet through the greater part of his term, he should now throw them overboard and pick up new and untried mea. No abler secretary of state than Mr. Seward can be found, and it is doubthid if in either case the change will be an improvement. It is probable that the President has decidid to rusue a new and more radical course and finds it necessary to procure other and more reckless men to do liwork. The policy is developing itself rajeidly, and for the present the nation is pur-ing through a crasis, the importance of which can scarcely be estimated.
